

New Features Go Live in MT5

It is the ongoing pursuit of PMEX to facilitate market participants to make informed decisions. In line with this endeavor, the Exchange has enabled the following features in MetaTrader 5 (MT5):

1. Economic Calendar

It is a fundamental market analysis tool to provide useful information about macroeconomic events. Using the economic calendar, the market participants can keep track of key events and evaluate their effect on futures markets. Information about economic indicator releases can help market participants to formulate informed trading decisions and forecast future market developments. The Exchange has also provided the economic calendar at its website.

2. News

This feature will allow the market participants to keep themselves abreast with the daily, hourly, and minute-by-minute market information. Moreover, this tool serves as an intelligent curation of the financial media's most insightful stories.

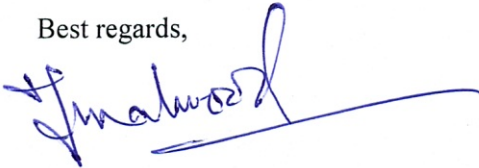

3. Push Notifications

Through this feature, market participants will now receive push notifications on MT5 mobile application. All market participants who have not yet downloaded MT5 mobile application for iOS or Android are advised in their best interest to download the application and get timely alerts and other updates being sent by the Exchange through push notifications on their mobile phones.

Disclaimer: The Economic Calendar and News are the features of MT5 which is a third-party product. PMEX does not accept any responsibility or liability for any inaccuracy/ irregularity in information contained therein. Any loss of business or profit or any direct, indirect or consequential loss resulting from use of the information shall be the sole responsibility of the users.
